Tail light for TVS STAR HLX150 refers to the white light placed at the rear of the motorcycle to display uninterrupted lights. It is used to display the dynamics of this motorcycle and identify the dynamics of other vehicles, and to judge the situation of motorcycle crossing or overtaking.

The tail light of the motorcycle is composed of two sets of filaments, one is on when the car is killed, and the other is on when the headlights and small lights are on

One of the three lines of the tail light is the negative pole, one is the brake light, and the other is the tail light that only lights up when the headlight is on. One is connected to the headlight switch, the other is connected to the brake switch, and the negative wire is connected to the battery or frame.
