The brake shoes are installed on the fixed brake base plate. The two arc-shaped brake shoes form a circle with a diameter slightly smaller than the brake drum and extend into the brake drum. When the brakes are applied, the drive mechanism spreads the circular brake shoes outwards, and the high-friction brake shoes rub violently with the inner surface of the brake drum, forcing the rotating brake drum to gradually slow down until it stops rotating.

When replacing, it is necessary to replace the brake pads with good quality, so as to achieve the best braking effect between the brake pads and the brake disc and minimize the wear.

After the brake shoes are replaced, they must be run-in to achieve the best braking effect. The newly replaced shoes must be driven with caution.
