WAY-C

Motorcycle oil filter is an important component for filtering engine oil. It is located in the oil filter seat on the engine and is responsible for capturing and blocking particles such as impurities, dirt, and metal particles in the oil to ensure that the oil circuits inside the engine remain clean and prevent damage to the engine's operation.

Material: Motorcycle oil filters are usually made of paper or synthetic fiber materials. These materials have good filtration properties and oil flow, effectively capturing and retaining particulate matter while maintaining adequate oil flow to the engine.

Filtration efficiency: The filtration efficiency of an oil filter refers to its ability to capture and block particulate matter.

Replacement cycle: The oil filter element will accumulate excessive dirt and particulate matter after a period of use, so it needs to be replaced regularly.
