Motorcycle spotlight, also known as an auxiliary or driving light, is an additional lighting accessory that is mounted on a motorcycle to provide increased visibility and illumination. Spotlights are typically mounted on the front of the motorcycle and are aimed to project a focused beam of light in a specific direction.

Motorcycle spotlights serve several purposes. They can enhance visibility for the rider, especially in low-light conditions or when riding in areas with poor street lighting. Spotlights can also improve the visibility of the motorcycle to other motorists, making it easier for them to see the bike. Additionally, spotlights can help riders identify potential hazards on the road, such as animals, debris, or obstacles.
