Motorcycle handle lever lock, also known as a brake lever lock or clutch lever lock, is a security device designed to prevent unauthorized use or theft of a motorcycle. It is typically used when the motorcycle is parked or left unattended.

The handle lever lock is a physical lock that immobilizes the motorcycle's brake or clutch lever, preventing it from being pulled or squeezed. By securing the lever in place, it becomes extremely difficult for someone to operate the motorcycle without removing the lock.

The lock is usually made of heavy-duty materials such as CNC to provide strength and durability. It features a mechanism that locks onto the handle lever and is operated by a key or combination lock.
