WAY-C

In the context of tricycles, the term "oil pump" generally refers to the mechanism responsible for circulating oil throughout the engine to lubricate its moving parts and reduce friction. Tricycles, like motorcycles or any other internal combustion engine vehicle, require a properly functioning oil pump to ensure adequate lubrication for smooth operation and to prevent engine damage.

The oil pump in a tricycle is typically driven by the engine's crankshaft or camshaft and is usually located within the engine's lower end or oil pan. Its primary function is to draw oil from the oil pan or reservoir and pump it under pressure to various engine components that require lubrication, such as the crankshaft bearings, camshaft, piston rings, and valve train.
