The oil pump assembly for the HAOJUE KA150 is a component that is responsible for circulating oil throughout the engine to ensure proper lubrication of its moving parts. It helps to reduce friction, dissipate heat, and protect the engine from excessive wear.

It is recommended to refer to the HAOJUE KA150 service manual or consult with a certified HAOJUE technician to get the most accurate and up-to-date information.

Working principle of the oil pump: When the engine is working, the driving gear on the camshaft drives the transmission gear of the oil pump, causing the driving gear fixed on the driving gear shaft to rotate, thereby driving the driven gear to rotate in the opposite direction and pumping the oil from the inlet. The oil chamber is sent to the oil outlet chamber along the tooth gap and pump wall. In this way, a low pressure is formed at the oil inlet chamber and suction is generated, sucking the oil in the oil pan into the oil chamber. As the main and driven gears continue to rotate, the oil is continuously pressed to the required parts.
